ABOUT US

We are a full-fledged, 360-degree corporate communications company established in 2017. Over the years, we have undertaken creative design origination, development and execution; strategic communication, multidisciplinary trainings, film productions, coverage, media relations, events management and public relations for local and international clients in the private, public and development sectors.

We have positioned ourselves as an Integrated Marketing and Communications Agency that builds, strengthens and defends the reputation of our clients using innovative solutions that integrate the traditional media channels, new media channels, advertising and marketing.

We are well positioned to ensure that your brand is top of mind to your key stakeholders by ensuring that we build and strengthen personalized relationships with stakeholders and generate alliances with third parties- governments, media, consumers among others.

We use the latest technology in traditional and digital media, to listen to and track what the audience is saying about your brand. We use that information to analyze your audience and advise you on the best approaches to use.

We boast of a team of qualified in-house and external consultants across the continent of Africa, with a vast skill set in the areas of content development, digital marketing, crisis communication, media liaison and relations, government relations, fundraising and stakeholder engagement, among others.

To Whom It May Concern,

RE: SYINDU POSHIA MUSESIA

I am writing to recommend Syindu Museya who served as a Communications Consultant for various programmes under the State Department for Energy in Kenya from 2022 to 2024. During this time, she proved to be an invaluable asset to our team, bringing expertise, professionalism, and creativity to every aspect of our communication initiatives.

Key among the events she participated in are the Africa Energy Forum (2023), Africa Climate Summit (2023) and the Clean Cooking Week (2023).

In her role, Poshia was responsible for developing and implementing a comprehensive communications strategy aimed at increasing public awareness of Kenya's energy policies, projects, and reforms. This included handling media relations, engaging stakeholders, managing digital content, and ensuring transparent and consistent communication across various platforms. One of her key achievements was the conceptualization and execution of "Kaa Safe Mtaani" digital campaign that enhanced awareness on safe use of LPG gas for low income households in Kenya. This campaign reached over 10Million LPG gas users in Kenya.

Syindu has demonstrated a deep understanding of the energy sector and the unique challenges it presents, particularly in communicating complex technical issues to diverse audiences, from government officials to the general public. Her ability to translate technical jargon into accessible, impactful messages significantly improved public understanding of the energy sector. Poshia was also adept at managing high-level stakeholder engagements, ensuring that key players, such as government bodies, private sector partners, and civil society groups, remained well-informed and involved in key energy sector developments. She was also strategic in working with key Semi-Autonomous Government Agencies (SAGAs) under the Ministry, notably Kenya Electricity Generating Company (KenGen), Kenya Energy Transmission Company (KETRACO), Energy and Petroleum Regulatory Authority (EPRA), Rural Electrification and Renewable Energy Corporation (REREC), and the Geothermal Company (GDC).

In addition to her technical skills, she demonstrated a remarkable ability to work under pressure, managing tight deadlines and multiple projects with ease. Her proactive attitude, attention to detail, and exceptional interpersonal skills made her a trusted advisor not only to the communications team but also to senior leadership within the department.

Based on my experience working with Miss Syindu I am confident that she will bring the same level of dedication, expertise, and innovation to any future projects she undertakes. I highly recommend her for any communications consultancy roles, especially within sectors that require strategic and impactful communication efforts, such as energy, infrastructure, or public policy.

Should you require any further information, please do not hesitate to contact the undersigned.

Yours Sincerely,

To whom it may concern;

RE: RECOMMENDATION LETTER FOR MS. SYINDU POSHIA MUSESYA

I am writing to recommend Ms. Syindu Poshia Musesya, who served as a Communications Consultant and Project Management Lead for the Agnes Tirop Conference and the Kenya Golf Open Tournament from 2021-2022. During this period, I was the Chief of Staff in the Office of the Cabinet Secretary, in the then Ministry of Sports, Culture and Heritage. As her supervisor, Ms. Musesya consistently demonstrated a high level of professionalism, creativity and expertise in communications and project management.

In the above mentioned roles, she was instrumental in developing the overall communications and project management strategies, team management as well as managing media relations and campaigns. What set Ms. Musesya apart were her exceptional communication skills and her keen understanding of both traditional and digital media landscapes. Her grasp of industry trends and her capacity to navigate tight deadlines made her an invaluable asset to our team.

She possesses exceptional analytical and problem-solving skills, strategic thinking and execution excellence, abilities that contributed to the projects' successes. Additionally, her ability to work with cross-functional teams and audiences, demonstrates her capacity for collaboration and leadership.

Based on my experience working with Ms. Musesya, I am confident that she will continue to excel as a communication professional and make a significant impact in any role that she is assigned to, in the areas of communications, project management, public relations, media relations.

If you require any further information, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Yours respectfully,

Sandra Ochola

To Whom It May Concern,

RE: POSHIA SYINDU MUSESYA

It is my pleasure to write this recommendation letter for Poshia Syindu Musesya, who currently serves as the Project Communications Consultant for the Nairobi River Basin Rehabilitation and Rehabilitation Programme Sewerage Improvement Project (NaRSIP II). Poshia has played a key role in designing and implementing the project's communications strategy, significantly increasing the visibility and understanding of the project among various stakeholders. As a communications consultant, Poshia is responsible for designing and implementing a comprehensive communications plan that effectively engages local communities, government agencies and environmental groups.

Her ability to break down complex technical information into clear, accessible messages has significantly increased public awareness and support for the project aimed at cleaning and rehabilitating Nairobi's river and sewerage systems. She has demonstrated exceptional media relations skills and ensured that the project's visibility was always well documented in media channels. Her strategic approach and expertise have resulted in a significant increase in public engagement, media coverage and stakeholder involvement.

In addition to her technical skills, she has consistently demonstrated strong leadership skills, creativity and adaptability. She works closely with engineers, environmental experts and local authorities to ensure the project's objectives are clearly communicated while addressing the concerns of affected communities. Her ability to navigate complex stakeholder relationships and foster positive dialogue has been critical to the project's success.

Based on my experience with Poshia Musesya, I can confidently say that she would be a valuable asset to any organization or project in need of a communications professional with both technical expertise and a deep understanding of community engagement, and I would highly recommend her for future communications consulting roles, especially in infrastructure, environmental, or public service projects.

If you require further information, please feel free to contact me at nkibaara@awwda.go.ke or +254 720 870853.

Yours Sincerely,

Nyambura Kibaara,

Director of Communication, Athi Water Works Development Agency.

Africa Must Address Barriers Hindering Youth Entrepreneurship – President Ruto

By PCS
Published on: December 09, 2023 03:26 (EAT)

African governments should create a conducive environment for entrepreneurship to expand opportunities for the youth.

President William Ruto said the governments should strive to provide young people with access to capital, mentorship and opportunities.

This, he explained, will enable youth to transform their ideas into thriving cross-border businesses.

"This can be achieved by simplifying business regulations, facilitating access to finance and promoting regional economic integration," he said.

The President said Kenya is leading from the front having set up the Hustler Fund that has enhanced access to affordable credit in the country.

"The Hustler Fund has enabled more than 21.7 million Kenyans access resources to establish and progress their enterprises especially those at the lowest echelons of the socio-economic ladder," he said.

CHURCH WRANGLE

Faithful conduct service yesterday outside the Nakuru West Church of Christ after they were locked out in a leadership wrangle. [Kipsang Joseph, Standard]

Water agency aims to implement Sh140b plan

► Seven water projects lined up in Kiambu and Murang'a counties

► Agency to source more funds through private partnership programmes.

GITAU WANYOIKE, MURANG'A

In efforts to improve water supply while addressing perennial shortages in Murang'a, Kiambu and Nairobi counties, the Athi Water Works Development Agency (AWWDA) has embarked on ambitious multi-billion shilling dam projects.

The projects aim to ensure steady and reliable water supply to residents of the three counties.

The water agency is planning to implement seven water projects in Kiambu and Murang'a counties at an estimated cost of over Sh140 billion. In Murang'a, AWWDA is constructing phase II of the Northern Collector tunnel at a cost of Sh12 billion while Maragwa 4 dam is estimated to cost Sh35 billion.

In neighbouring Kiambu, five dams have been lined up for construction in order to meet the county's pressing water demand. The dams are Ndarugu II, Kamiti, Thiririka, Ruiru II and Gatamaiyu whose estimated cost is Sh73 billion. To finance the projects, the agency is planning to source the funds from mixed financing and through private partnership programmes.

For a long time, residents in the two counties have cried foul that despite providing water to Nairobi, they are left struggling to access clean and sufficient water for domestic use.

Maragwa 4 dam is billed to be the biggest in the region, rivaling Thika dam popularly known as Ndukaani located in Gatanga constituency.

The proposed dam that is set to be constructed at the border of Kigumo and Kahuro sub-counties is designed to produce 180,000 cubic metres of water on a daily basis, that would be shared between Murang'a and Nairobi.

In February during his visit to Murang'a, President William Ruto said his government is working round the clock to implement the mega dam.

He said that National Treasury will partner with various international donors to get the funds required to complete the project that will benefit residents of Kigumo, Kahuro, Kiharu and Maragua.

At the moment, some parts of Murang'a and Maragua are served by the recently built Maragua II dam, constructed at a cost of Sh800 million.

In Kiambu, AWWDA is facing hurdles in construction of Ndarugu II dam which is estimated to cost Sh15 billion. The dam is touted as the second biggest in the county after the Sh24 billion Karimuni II dam.

The proposed dam is meant to provide water to the residents of Gatundu, Juja and Thika who were not included in the Karimuni II dam supply plan.

The mega dam was launched by former President Uhuru Kenyatta a few days to the 2022 General Election.

In March, last year, AWWDA officials and consultants were chased away by residents of Gateti, Mwimuto, Kanjuku, Watathi and Gathaiti during an abortive meeting to explain the scope of work and affected areas.

Project challenged

The locals from the villages where the dam is set to be built later moved to Thika Environment and Lands Court seeking its implementation halted.

In a petition, John Mwangi Kariuki, James Muchai, Willy Githua, Patrick Kariuki and 485 other affected land owners opposed the process of implementing construction Ndarugu II dam project.

"We urge the government to consider putting up the dam in other areas to avert environmental degradation of Gatundu North that could affect our farming activities," said Ng'ang'a Muthua, a former Chania MCA.

In a further bid to quench thirsty residents of Thika and Githunguri, the government has announced plans to implement the Sh21 billion water and sanitation project in Kiambu county.

The project involves construction of Thika 3A dam at the confluence of River Thika and Kiama which will hold 14.6 billion litres of water.

KICD Collaborates With CASIO Middle East To Improve Learner Competency

The Kenya Institute of Curriculum Development (KICD) and CASIO Middle East (CME) have announced a collaboration that will provide free educational resources and ways to solve mathematics using a scientific calculator.

The collaboration aims to motivate students to learn mathematics and the usage of technological tools such as a scientific calculator to improve their performance and boost their chances in Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) careers.

The resources are aligned with KICDs Competency-Based Curriculum (CBC) program, and they consist of tutorials that show simplified and interactive operations of the scientific calculator.

The materials are accessible on the KICD website in the open educational resources section under introduction to CASIO fx-82EX calculator. The CASIO fx-82EX calculator or 'ClassWiz' is an upgraded version of the fx-82MS model which is popular among secondary school students.

Nairobi is Kenya's economic powerhouse, accounting for 9% of the country's 48.5 million population. However, expanding urbanization has outpaced essential service development, resulting in a number of challenges. Poor sanitation has harmed public health, the environment, and the economy, costing the country an estimated 0.9% of its GDP. Raw sewage discharge into waterways is a serious issue because only 51% of the city is served by sewers. This practice pollutes both surface and ground water, resulting in disease outbreaks, adverse environmental effects and economic losses.

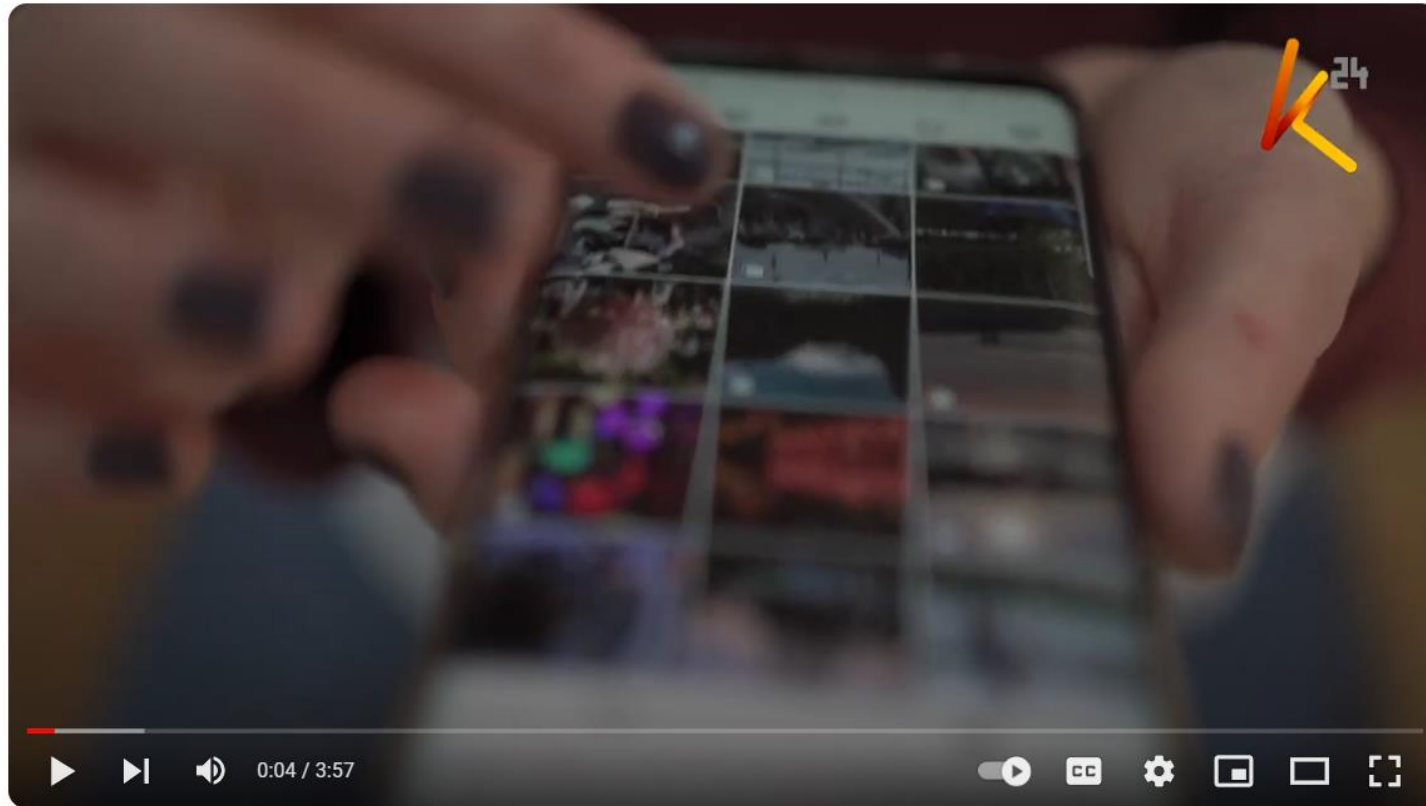

Kenya is implementing the Nairobi Rivers Sewerage Improvement Project phase 2 (NaRSIP II) through the Athi Water Works Development Agency \(AWWDA\), with the objective to increase citywide coverage of #enhanced #sanitation services from 48% to 55%.

Kenya In Need of More Women in the Energy Sector

By Poshia Museya

Kenya's national development blueprint, Vision 2030, recognizes energy as a key enabler in the fight against poverty and a catalyst for the SDGs. As the world shifts to greener and more sustainable energy sources, fewer women are involved in the sector's management and policymaking levels. Gender disparities in the energy sector continue to be a significant barrier to equal employment opportunities for women in the sector.

Climate change remains one of the most monumental challenges of our time, threatening the lives, livelihoods and health of women and girls all over the world. As the world calls for greater action to combat the devastating effects of climate change, the number of women in technical positions in the energy sector is decreasing by the minute. According to the Kenya Industrial Research and Development Institute (KIRDI), women make up only 5% of technical staff in Kenya's renewable energy sector.

But why are there so few women in the energy industry? To answer this question, an in-depth look at the factors influencing women's employment in this sector is required. Enrolling more women in engineering and STEM courses is one area that requires the sector's attention. Because the sector favours engineering and STEM courses, it is critical to encourage women, beginning in high schools, to pursue STEM courses, which have traditionally been dominated by men. According to a UNESCO study, only one-third of female students in Kenya's higher education pursue STEM courses.

According to research, women are more likely to support climate action and sustainability, as well as prioritize greener energy sources, particularly for home use.

Because fewer women than men pursue engineering programs specializing in the energy sector, more men are promoted to decision-making positions in this sector, leaving very few opportunities for women. As a result, addressing this issue from the beginning of education will be significant in ensuring that more women are appointed to management and technical positions.

More women in positions of leadership in the energy sector will benefit Kenya's climate action. According to research, women are more likely to support climate action and sustainability, as well as prioritize greener energy sources, particularly for home use.

KenGen's Pink Energy platform, which promotes gender equality and women's empowerment has been a trailblazer in advocating for female leaders in the energy sector. KenGen has also played an important role in advancing the space of women in C-Suite positions by hiring women in top leadership, former CEO, Rebecca Miano serving as an example. The Pink Energy Initiative has gone a long way in creating change and enhancing the potential of women in KenGen. It is founded on three key principles: personal development and empowerment, creating a conducive work environment, and creating gender awareness.

As Kenya embarks on an ambitious journey to achieve 100% clean energy by 2030, there is an urgent need to involve more women in energy decision-making. Kenya has proven to be a driving force in advancement of the sustainable and green energy debate, hosting world-class conferences such as the Africa Energy Forum and the recently concluded Africa Climate Summit. As the world prepares for COP28 and other global energy events, more and more women must be involved in this sector. Increasing the number of women at the top in the energy sector is about more than just equality. It is about electing leaders who prioritize a fair and sustainable future for all.
